Unto the Court the jury sent
A queer report that tells
How each and every juror has,
A mighty nose for "smells."
The record's made. Each jurymen,
As through the world he goes,
They're sure to say his leading point
Is principally nose.

Daily Bulletin at Germantown.

Our friends at Germantown can procure the DAILY BULLETIN on the day it is published of Mr. J. C. Kackley, who is our authorized agent. The price is one cent a copy, 25 cents a month or $3.00 a year.

The grand jury adjourned on Tuesday.

LEXINGTON is literally crowded with people attending the races which began yesterday.

The guns for the Emmet Guards arrived from Frankfort yesterday. They are Springfield rifles of number 45 calibre.

From almost everywhere come reports of the ravages of smallpox. It is considered firmly established for the present season.

Mrs. MARY OWENS of Frankfort, reiterates her charges against General Nuckols and has published a statement giving minute details. She says the matter will be brought into the courts.

DURING the week of the races, the steamer Handy will make regular trips from this city to the grounds at 25 cents for the round trip or fifteen cents for a single trip. She will leave Maysville at halfpast twelve p. m., and will make a trip every half hour.

To the Picked Nine of East Maysville.

Editor Bulletin: You will please say to the East Maysville Club, that we, the Picked Nine of the Cigarmakers, hereby notify them that we will accept their challenge printed in last week's BULLETIN, and will play them Saturday at halfpast two o'clock, on the grounds near Robinson's Mill.

CIGARMAKER'S PICKED NINE.

THE GRAND JURY.

Literary Curiosity in the Form of a Report Concerning the Jail.

The following is the report of the grand jury to the court at the session on Tuesday:

To the Honorable Judge of the Mason Circuit Court: May it please your Honor, we will report of our inspection of the gaol. We found very bad smells. Bad smells on the right of us, bad smells on the left of us, bad smells in front of us, bad smells in the rear of us. They had been whitewashed heavily by the gaoler but they would not down at his bidding.

In the North East attic room, the gaoler showed a little hole above a window through which he said two prisoners got out. We found very bad smells which would naturally result from their straining to get through so small a hole. The hole and all were whitewashed. We saw a big hole in the outer wall through which a fellow might get into prison easily and he might get out easily and we would not blame him for it, the smells are so bad there. We came to the conclusion that either the outer wall should be pulled down and put into the gaol or the gaol should be pulled down and put into the outer wall, or pull down both and build a better gaol, where prisoners should be better treated, not as well as they deserve, but better as Shakespeare has Lord Hamlet to say "therein lies the merit of the bounty." Treat them according to the honor and dignity of the county. We do not hold the gaoler responsible for said stinks. All of which we respectfully submit.

Look to Your Cellars—A Bit of Seasonable Advice.

Within the past twenty-five years there has been a great increase of malarial disease, both in city and country. Various opinions have been written on malaria—what it is, what causes it, and what is the best remedy—by medical men who have given the matter much attention. All agree on the fact that to preserve health it is necessary to prevent or remove all nuisances, especially when they are confined within a certain space. Perhaps the most fruitful sources of disease in the household is in the cellar. A dirty cellar has on more than one occasion caused sickness to enter families, carrying off one after another by diphtheria or some other deadly disease. One of the first duties of the careful housewife in the spring is to make a thorough overhauling and cleansing of the house and cellar. In the latter they remove everything that has a tendency to decay, and whitewash the walls—lime being known as a splendid disinfectant. A few vegetables that may have been stored up during the winter and left to decay may produce an offensive smell or be an unsuspected bane to health by infecting the cellar. The indifferent housekeepers may be busy in getting their houses in order until the remnants of vegetables that were stored up in the fall begin to decay and breed a pestilence in the house from a cause that is not suspected until it is too late to avoid the consequences. Standing water or a damp cellar—especially if there should happen to be any decaying vegetable matter about—causes the presence of a malarial atmosphere in the house, and it is not noticed until fever or some other disease breaks out. Even those who are aware of the existence of dampness and of their exposure to malarial influences, do not take prompt measures to correct the evil, but are willing to take their chances, and live on in security or in hope until sickness awakens them to their danger. Common sense teaches mankind that spring is the time for this work to be done, and it ought to be thoroughly done now.

Death of Nellie Cassidy.

The particulars of the distressing death of little Nellie Cassidy, daughter of Dr. J. S. Cassidy, formerly of this city, at Covington, a few days ago are thus given by the Commonwealth:

Saturday afternoon, at about halfpast four o'clock, an accident, which resulted in the death of Nellie, the five-year-old daughter of Dr. J. S. Cassidy, the wounding of Charles Osterman's eight-year-old son, and the shooting of a horse took place. It happened as follows: Doc Reese, a colored man, from Greenwood Lake, brought in an old army musket to Chas. Osterman's gun store, No. 712 Madison street, and while Osterman and the negro were examining the lock the gun which was charged with a load of buckshot, went off. The load first struck Osterman's little son, making a flesh wound in the arm, and then little Nellie Cassidy, who, with her mother, were passing at the time. The load struck her in the forehead, fracturing her skull and scattering her brains on the sidewalk. She died in a few hours. A horse belong to Mr. Schwerdtman was struck in the shoulder with some half a dozen buckshot. Osterman was arrested and released on his own recognizance. The darkey Reese was arrested and is now in jail, awaiting an investigation of the case by the coroner. Coroner De Gruyter held an inquest to-day, on the body of Nellie Cassidy and rendered the following verdict:

"I, Henry de Gruyter, Coroner of Kenton county, did this day hold an inquest upon the body of Nellie Cassidy, who was killed on the 29th day of April, 1882, and after a full hearing of the testimony find that her death was caused by gun-shot wounds, and further find that the shooting was from gross recklessness on the part of Charles F. Osterman, a gunsmith, and Doc Reese, a colored man; but without any criminal intention on their part."

The statements were conflicting. Several witnesses testified that they saw the darkey leave the store after the shooting. The darkey swore he was a half block away at the time. The negro was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury, which is now in session and will investigate the case.

The funeral of Nellie Cassidy took place at two o'clock to-day.

Osterman's little boy is getting along very well, and it is now thought that his arm will have to be amputated.

Charlie Whittington is building a blacksmith shop on Second street in East Maysville, and expects to do custom work. He is a first rate workman, and will probably do a good business.

Ask for National Export.

No beverage has gained such a widespread reputation as Moerlein's Lager Beer, which is bottled by the National Lager Beer Bottling Company, of Cincinnati, O. Nothing but the best old lager beer manufactured is bottled by the "National," and this accounts for the great reputation it has acquired for putting up a good article. The company ships beer to all parts of the globe, and every one proclaim it as the beverage of the nation. The company makes it their special business to bottle only genuine Export Lager Beer, and, having inaugurated the plan, it proposes to so continue the original intention that not only here, but in all parts of the country, the reputation of the beer will be kept up to the highest altitude. m15t

An Old Play Bill.

The following is a copy of an old play bill printed in this city nearly fifty years ago. It will give some idea of the attention that was paid to theatricals in those days. Maysville, it seems, then had a theatre that was open the season through, and we are informed by some of our older citizens that the elder Booth, Mrs. Drake and other celebrities, did not disdain to appear before Maysville audiences:

THEATRE.

COUNTY POINTS.

MURPHYSVILLE.

George Hudson and Bob McIntyre, from Flemingsburg, have been visiting friends at this place.

Miss Lou Berry, from the vicinity of Washington, was the guest of Mrs. A. R. Howard, for several days last week.

Mrs. Lucy Wells paid a visit of several days to her mother, Mrs. Manning, in Dover, a short time since.

R. C. Bland bought fifty-six head of sheep from Aaron Owens last week, for which he paid $5 per head.

A. R. Howard took twenty head of cattle to Flemingsburg on last county court day; and sold eleven head of the lot at $37.50 per head and remaining nine at $23 per head.

Mrs. Anna Barnes will give lessons in vocal music here, beginning on next Saturday evening.

Rev. Mr. Valentine, of Augusta, preached at the Presbyterian church, in this place, on last Saturday evening and Sunday morning.

Repairs will commence on the Methodist Church, Murphysville, in a few days. Dr. Gault, J. R. Stevenson, Mrs. Anna Barnes, and Mrs. Maggie Wells have been appointed on the committee of expenditure, and Miss Etta Prather, treasurer.

Sunday school was organized at the Presbyterian church here, on last Sabbath morning with a large number of pupils in attendance. J. R. Stevenson was elected superintendent, and John Wright, Miss Mary Paul, Miss Nannie Brooklog, Miss Pearl Stevenson, and Miss Etta Prather were appointed teachers. M. C. P.

STATE OF LEWIS AT LARGE.

Further Particulars of the Fearful Work of the Cyclone—Local Notes.

VANCEBURG, KY., May 2, 1882.—The unseen force that has swept away buildings like chaff, has paralyzed the people along the line of its ruthless march. One man who was struck dumb when he recovered repeated these old and familiar lines:

God moves in a mysterious way,
His wonders to perform,
He plants his foot upon the sea
And rides upon the storm.

The manifest dependence upon Providence is general especially with women. Now some of these evangelists can find a vineyard to work in, and after this disaster, will find minds more pliable, and more ready to receive an explanation of the mysteries of Providence.

Mr. Mace Tracy, a reliable and successful farmer on Kinney, informs me the cyclone came without warning, and broke upon the premises of Granville Dyer, adjoining the farm of Squire Sam. McElowney, and scattered the dwelling, killing two children, and injuring the wife of Mr. Dyer so seriously that her life is in danger. He also says that clothing, hats, bonnets, bedding and other articles belonging to well to do people have been found all along the waters of Kinney. A looker on describes the cloud that preceded the storm as followed by birds, but upon closer inspection it was found to be flying timber, debris, earth and other things flying through the air.

The ground current carried away the chimney of Mr. Clark's new two story dwelling, and removed the building. The house, the inmates say, was moved up and down several times.

The large tobacco barn recently built by Wm. Cooper opposite this house, was leveled to the ground. The place is called Centerville. The storm seemed to pass over one house and demolish the next. On the ridge it did not spare anything above the surface of the ground.

From the valley of Kinney it continued round the Southwest, the track never being over three hundred yards wide. Dr. W. H. Campbell argues with the writer that it is an electric agent from the fact that no wind or current of air was felt outside of its confines and those within its range felt a vacuum, or sickening stillness, until everything around them was overturned and swept away. Other persons I have interviewed report that hail of enormous size fell during the storm.

The Esculapian Springs buildings were rocked about and were fired in several places but the flames were extinguished before any serious damage was done. Remember this trail of mystery traveled on the mountain tops over the Springs. There are several families reported to be in distress, but I have not been able to verify the report.

TOO MUCH MARRIED.

Austin Irvin, of the State of Lewis, drinks polygamy whisky, the consequence was he came to Concord and represented to Miss Toss McClain that he had a home for a wife and she was his first and last choice. The parties proceeded to Vanceburg and secured a marriage license. Wm. Porter, bartender, and on the 10th of April were duly married by Rev. Parker, esp. The groom took his bride to his home and found that Mr. Austin Irvin had another wife, who returned Miss McClain to her former home and occupation. The next day, Mr. Irvin has kept himself scarce since the 12th of April.

Prof. Gaines has opened his school school under the most encouraging circumstances and has employed Miss Sarah Riddle, of Aberdeen, O., as assistant. They have the best and largest facilities to accommodate scholars from abroad.

The accomplished and attractive Misses Sophia and Anna Riddle, of Aberdeen, Ohio, are visiting friends in Vanceburg.

Judge Wm. C. Ireland, of Ashland, born and educated in Lewis county, is the first and last choice of this county, for Judge of the new judicial circuit.

MARRIED.

At the residence of Mrs. George Potter, May 2nd, 1882, Miss CARRIE H. EVANS to Mr. DANIEL W. COBB, all of Maysville Ky.
